Is it necessary for me to have a chemical knowledge of foods in order to serve as food inspector? H. J.

Not necessary, as witness the number of persons who act in the capacity without it, but much to be desired. In the general progress you would probably not hold the place long unless you at once began to qualify the better for it by acquiring the knowledge you speak of.

Please tell me whether the State of Virginia makes any provision for afflicted persons unable to support themselves.

The State does not unless the person is criminal or insane or a Confederate veteran, but the counties and cities do make such provision, reasonably adequate in some cases and far from it in others.

Counting the Cost.

How much was spent in the country last year for intoxicants? How much for the salvation of man?

The total consumption was about 2.000,000,000 gallons and the cost was about $700,000,000. This looks like quite a good deal, but the reports seem to bear, the figures out. We have no means of knowing how much was spent for the religious good of man to balance this mass of evil, but it is doubtful if the figures would make an attractive showing in comparison.
